DYING MAN BROUGHT

Magagnos, Mortally Injured, Is Produced as Witness in $100,000 Suit.

Everett Magagnos was brought from St. Vincent's Hospital in an ambulance to the County Court House and carried to Justice Newburger's part of the Supreme Court on a litter, hopelessly smashed, to testify in his own behalf in a suit against the P. M. Ohmeis Company, owners of restaurants and a bottling establishment at No. 517

Washington street, in which he demands $100,000 damages.

Magagnos was a painter, at work on the sixth floor, when he fell through an unprotected elevator shaft to the basement. He was terribly injured. Literally every bone in his body was broken.

broken.

The accident happened Nov. 13 last, and as the physicians agreed that he could not possibly survive his injuries, his counsel, Joseph A. Shay, secured preference for his case in order that it would be tried before his client died.

The Ohmeis Company denies that the elevator well was unprotected.
